The STATE in REVIEW

PROMOTED TO MAJOR

Word has been received in Terre Haute of the promotion from captain to the rank of major of Eugene Nirdlinger, whose wife Beatrice Silver Nirdlinger (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Silver of Terre Haute) has been making her home with her parents since her husband's entrance into the army. They resided in Chicago, prior to his call, and have a little two-and-a-half-year old daughter, Nancy Madeline. Major Nirdlinger is a member of General McArthur's staff and was with him in the Philippines. His letters home are encouraging as to the final outcome, especially as regards the Japanese situation.

MONEY RAISED

Mr. Lazur L. Goodman and Meyer Gallin of Indianapolis were in Vincennes Sunday to speak to a large crowd on behalf of the J. D. C. Rabbi Morris Feuerlicht who was scheduled to speak, was unable to do so because of illness. Mr. Goodman stated that he hoped to make up the balance of the quota for Indiana, a sum of $3,000, and before Mr. Goodman left, more than 95% of this sum was pledged.

After this session the B'nai B'rith held their regular meeting, and at the auxiliary meeting it was decided to hold a jitney supper on May 6. At the close of the meetings Mr. Max Strashun served cold meats, salads, and drinks to the 100 odd guests.

LYRICS FOR RABBI'S BABY

This poem is dedicated to Rabbi and Mrs. Sydney K. Mossman, the proud parents of a four-month old baby girl.

Rabbi and Daughter

Sharon Aviva, gorgeous mite!
You turn darkness into light—
One little radiant smile from you
Gives me courage all day thru.

Gives me courage all day thru
All the worthwhile things to do:
Comforting the sick and needy,
Challenging the smug and greedy.

Thorns and brambles mar the way
Of the path I tread each day,
But they leave no scars on me
You are my immunity!

The clasp of your hand small and warm
My anchor in a world of storm;
Serenely in my arms you nod—

Union Paper Here Demands Arrest Of Father Coughlin

In a bristling editorial, The Union, official publication of the Indianapolis Central Labor Union, this week demanded the arrest of Father Coughlin. The editorial, headed, "He Won't Be Quiet" follows in full:

"As the Union editorial of last week went to press, Charles E. Coughlin's Social Justice was barred from the mails.

"This week it was barred by express companies.

"That is not enough.

"Coughlin ought to be locked up—just as Silver Shirt Pelley was locked up to face trial for his utterings in The Galilean.

"Barring of Coughlin's mouthpiece from the mails will not stop him from spreading his sixth column attacks on the government, the war effort, the Jews, labor, England, and even on Catholics who do not happen to agree with him.

"Always resourceful Coughlin will adopt means to circumvent any block to distribution of his paper, even to changing its name, even to printing it as a supplement to some other publication of similar tendencies (of which there are many).

"The post office department, in barring the publication, acted on the suggestion of the Department of Justice, which may mean that a federal grand jury will go into the matter of responsibility for utterances detrimental to our effort.

"But in the Pelley case, the Department of Justice didn't wait for a grand jury. It locked Pelley up. Coughlin has talked worse than Pelley.

"Social Justice has been condemned by Catholic leaders as outside the protection of the Church and certainly not its mouthpiece.

"Yet, undoubtedly many good

MacMichael in London For Cranborne Talk

By Jewish Telegraph Agency
LONDON—The arrival in London of Sir Harold A. MacMichael, Palestine's High Commissioner, was announced here this week by the Colonial Office. The announcement said that the High Commissioner came to London to report to Colonial Secretary Lord Cranborne on matters concerning Palestine's administration and defense.

Knesses Israel Club To Hear Dr. Chavel

The meeting of the Knesses Israel Men's Club at 8:45 p. m. Monday evening, May 11 at the Synagogue will see news reels of the present war and hear a talk by Rabbi Charles B. Chavel of the Anshei Sfard Congregation of Louisville, Ky. Rabbi Chavel, though still a young man, has already made a name for himself as one of the outstanding scholars in the American rabbinate. The first volume of his translation of Maimonides' Book of Divine Commandments has been published by the Soncino Press in London and has been widely acclaimed by students.

Sylvia Greenberg Crowned AZA Sweetheart

Sylvia Greenberg was named A. Z. A. Sweetheart for 1942 over five other contestants for the crown at the first annual sweetheart dance of the South Side A. Z. A. Sunday. The South Side A. Z. A. basketball team defeated the Louisville five for the tourney cage crown.

3 Meatless Days Set for Palestine

By Jewish Telegraph Agency
JERUSALEM—Three meatless days a week were decreed by the Palestine Government in an order published in the Official Gazette.

graph-Register has maintained silence on the matter.

Figures secured from the Cincinnati Committee for Refugees explode the Register's allegation that "draft boards here as in other cities have been experiencing unwillingness on the part of some of the refugees to fight in the United States army." The refugee committee reveals that in all of Cincinnati there are only eight refugees who hold visitors' visas, the category referred to in the Catholic weekly's editorial. Of these, four are women, and the men were all over draft age at the time of the first selective service registration. Two of these four came under the enlarged draft registration and have heard nothing from their boards as yet. Cincinnati's local selective service boards Numbers 14 and 15, in which the bulk of the refugees are registered, reports that there has been no case of an attempt at draft evasion by any refugee.

The Telegraph-Register, it is pointed out here, has indulged in a snide form of "Jew-baiting" over a long period and has been consistently anti-Roosevelt, anti-British, pro-isolationist and anti-war. Msgr. Edward A. Freking is editor of The Telegraph-Register.

Admits Drive Quota of $168,000 May Be Reached

Admitting that the 1942 Jewish Welfare Fund campaign was approaching the $168,000 goal, L. L. Goodman, drive chairman, Wednesday said that he did not wish to announce the definite amount raised to date. Although a note of hope and close to optimism could be detected in Mr. Goodman's voice as he prepared to leave for Shelbyville where that district's drive dinner was being held Wednesday night, he said to announce that many prospects when called on had been out-of-town, and that when all the cards were in and if no large cuts are among them, it was hoped that the quota would be subscribed.

Last year $140,000 was raised, which was upped $10,000 by a supplemental campaign for the defense agencies, but the present goal if reached will be the largest sum raised in the history of the Indianapolis Jewish community, and probably will earn national recognition for the city.

J.C.C.A. Annual Meeting Thursday

The Jewish Community Center Association operating Kirshbaum Center and the Communal Building will hold its annual meeting at 8:15 p. m. Thursday, May 7 at Kirshbaum Center. Members of the Association have received announcements of this meeting and all others who are not members are cordially invited.

Because of the rapidly expanding program for soldiers, sailors and marines, and the continued civilian program, the meeting will be confined to business, Theodore R. Dann, president of the association, said. Kahn, Max Klezmer, Sam Kroot, Liebert Mossler, Julius I. Salman and Walter Wolf. The Jewish Federation, in accordance with the by-laws of the J. C. C. A. has appointed the following three directors: Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt, Sol Goldsmith, and Dr. Harry Jacobs.

FRIDAY, MAY 1, 1942

The Editor's Chair,

In the Chicago Jewish Chronicle, the publisher, H. L. Meites, after quoting a statement from Rabbi Solomon Goldman that: "The anglo-Jewish press, to date, is not a creditable performance," goes on to criticize "our rabbis and communal leaders" because as he writes: "They could have done much to improve the Anglo-Jewish press by helping it and by co-operating with it." "During the past 25 years," Mr. Meites continues, "we have not heard of one rabbi or prominent leader urging his congregation and the audience they have occasion to address, to subscribe to an Anglo-Jewish newspaper or magazine, or to help the Jewish press in any shape, form or manner." Further Mr. Meites writes: "Rabbis will give reviews on sex plays and 'best sellers' but never discuss an article or an editorial which appeared in a certain newspaper or magazine (Anglo-Jewish) no matter how powerful, interesting and thought-provoking it may be, for fear it might in the least help that newspaper or magazine."

Mr. Meites expresses the viewpoint of that group of Anglo-Jewish publishers who believe that merely because they publish a Jewish newspaper they deserve support. Naturally the support of the rabbinate would help Anglo-Jewish publications, in some degree, but as far as I am concerned I think Mr. Meites bases his reasoning on a faulty premise. Ninety-nine or more per cent of the Anglo-Jewish publications are published for profit, to make money for the owners, and that being true why should they expect more help from Jewish leaders than the daily papers ask from their public.

It all boils down to this. If the Anglo-Jewish publication does a good job, if it earns the support of its readers, it will get it. I must admit, however, that rabbis and Jewish leaders (my theory is that the Anglo-Jewish press forces these two groups to share their positions of authority) are slower in coming around than the reading public.

As far as quoting from The Post, I think our paper is Indiana rabbis' most prolific source for Friday night sermons. Just go through the "Synagogue Notes" column in this paper any Friday and mark the sermon subjects and their connection with articles or editorials in this paper. Why at Temple Beth-El in South Bend on Friday evening, March 27, Mrs. Saul Block speaking at the annual Sisterhood Sabbath, used as her subject, "Shall We Bring Children Into the World," a subject which readers will readily recognize as a feature article in our New Year issue of last year. In fact, following our Passover or New Year issues, in almost every pulpit in Indiana, you can hear one or the other of the articles in these editions, discussed pro and con.

A New Boldness

IN CONNECTION with three incidents, two of which are printed in this week's issue and all of which must have found a favorable reaction among our readers, there were two methods of approach. The three incidents are the Saturday Evening Post articles, the charge of the official Catholic paper of the Cincinnati diocese that aliens were seeking to avoid the draft, and the third is the threatened repetition of the riot in Quebec which was called off after a show of force by the Jewish young men of the city.

In all these cases, a committee could have been appointed, and then after due consultation approached the men in responsible positions of these other groups and pointed out to them the significance of what was being done in the hopes that pressure would be brought in the proper places by the proper people. This is the method that has seemed to have been the guiding principle of practically all the efforts to fight the enemies of democracy who wittingly or unwittingly use the Jewish people to accomplish their aim.

In the Saturday Evening Post, the retraction and apology and the dismissal of the editor responsible, were reactions brought about by doing the normal thing—enough readers (and as the magazine admits many non-Jewish readers too) took the issue into their own hands and withdrew their subscriptions and their insertion orders for advertising. This method, had it been brought to the American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League for consideration before being acted upon would have evoked exclamations of horror. Even The Jewish Post might have said, "No, this is the wrong way."

In the case of The American Israelite and its calling the Cincinnati Telegraph and Register, official Catholic publication, a red-handed prevaricator and then offering $1,000 for proof of its anti-Semitic allegation, some of the readers of The Jewish Post (maybe the editor too) would have trembled so with fear that the weather man might have had to report a mild tornado in Central Indiana.

In the case of the young Jewish men who almost by instinct rushed to the Young Men's Hebrew Association (what, have they no board of directors?) and organized to fight off anti-Semitic bands who were intent on a repetition of the pogrom of several weeks back, imagine any of our Indianapolis stalwarts congregating at Kirshbaum Center for the same purpose.

Jacob Weiss Is a Jew

IT COULD have been expected that because of his close association with Jewish causes and the synagogue that Jacob Weiss, attorney and former State Senator, would be called facetiously by some of his friends "Rabbi Weiss". Having been a member of Beth El Congregation for fifteen years, and for the same length of time a member of B'nai B'rith, having been for years and being at present a member of the National Administrative Committee of the Zionist Organization of America, and in addition president some three or four years ago of the Indianapolis Zionist District, Mr. Weiss could with modesty lay claim to some activity in the Jewish community.

But for Mr. Weiss to be charged with denying his Jewishness, as we are told is being rumored, is something more than the height of incongruity. To say that Hitler was a lover of Jews would be as gross a libel, but certainly not any more understandable than this underhanded political chicanery.

Out With Bingo Games

THE resolution approved by the Biennial Convention of the United Synagogue of America (Orthodox) last week in Atlantic City looking with disfavor "on all forms of card games, bingo, bridge, poker, etc., as social activities of the Synagogue" and condemning "the use of gambling in connection with money-raising" has specific application in Indianapolis. Last year at least two local Orthodox synagogues, under the guise of holding picnics, staged a series of bingo games, which were nothing but pure gambling to raise funds for synagogues which thereby lost their purity and certainly their dignity.

Let's Surprise Our Religious Leaders

FRIDAY evening services, or rather late Friday evening services will soon end for the season, and certainly those Post readers who have not attended services regularly or at least consistently must be in the minority. In former days synagogue attendance was not a matter of Friday night services, or as in the cases of many today for Yizkor and on Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur, but twice daily year in and year out.

Friday night attendance today is a minimum requirement for the minimum Jew.

Let Post readers show the way. For the next few weeks let attendance at Friday night services throughout the State be such as to show our rabbis that they have our support.

Let's surprise our beloved religious leaders. Let these Friday nights' attendance be a gift to them—our way of showing our appreciation.

Current Comment

More Discrimination Than Came to Notice of Committee, Chicago Jew Says—Last January, the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practices held a number of hearings in Chicago to determine whether war industries in this area were discriminating against certain racial elements—in particular Negroes and Jews.

This week the committee cited five firms in the Chicago area and five in the Milwaukee area as having failed to correct discriminatory practices. We doubt that the President's committee would have made the charges without having looked into the matter very thoroughly. Neither Mr. Mark Etheridge, general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who was chairman when the hearings were held here, nor Dr. Malcolm S. MacLain, president of Hampton Institute, fits the description of a radical, bent on crucifying American industry.

Why beat about the bush with a lot of 75-cent words? We all know that Negroes and Jews are discriminated against—if not by the firms cited, then certainly by many others which did not even come to the attention of the committee. We know that employment agencies are frequently instructed to send "only white Protestant applicants" for example.

We know, also, that every time some politician or publisher mouths words about "doing away with all these foreign social experiments of the New Deal, now that we are at war," they are giving aid and comfort to those who feel that racial discrimination is an integral part of democracy as it is to be practiced here.

It is time we began experimenting with democracy right here in our own front yard.—Editorial in the Chicago Sun.

And here are two quotations from Congregation bulletins of recent issue, showing where rabbis urge their members to read The Jewish Post. The Knesseth Israel (Hammond) Bulletin just preceding the Passover holidays had this to say: "You should subscribe to this paper that you may know of the Jewish happenings in our state as well as Jewish news of national interest." The Temple Beth-El Bulletin, of Gary, Ind., said: "You will find many news notes and other items of interest to you. You will enjoy the articles and regular features of this weekly as well as the vigorous and challenging editorial policy."

I am sorry to use Mr. Meites' article as a take-off for bragging about the standing of The Jewish Post in Indiana, but I have always so doggedly adhered to the proposition that The Post is a business organization and should never ask for support on any basis except that it might be interesting and worth the price of the subscription, that the opportunity to boast was too inviting.

Of course The Post is not at the point to which it aspires. It hopes to become a large (many more pages to print so much of the news it is now forced to discard) and influential publication, self-supporting, but deserving because of worth and not merely because it is Jewish, of the co-operation of its readers. The Post is becoming an institution in many a Jewish home, and the recent raise in subscription price to $2.00, a move which was long discussed and thought over, met with almost no complaint whatsoever. Organizations have come to realize that the paper is fair and impartial, and that although it may editorially follow one or another movement in American Jewish life, which is as it should be, in its news section every group is given to the treatment its importance and position warrants.

But, to get back to Mr. Meites, he could have pointed out that if the Anglo-Jewish press gets little encouragement from our rabbis and lay leaders, think what opposing rabbis and lay leaders get from one another.

It is almost a truism, unfortunate as it is, that the leader of one Jewish group cordially hates and despises the leader of an opposing Jewish group, and factions within one group are bitter toward another clique in the same organization. The Zionists cannot get along with the non-Zionist group, and one women's organization thinks that it is much more important than another, and so on and so forth. This might be healthy competition with a spirit of understanding, but for some reason there is nothing but suspicion, and very often downright hatred. This is one reason why a good many Jewish people stay out of organized Jewish life altogether, or having been in, drop out as a matter of self-protection. Right now I know of a situation in one congregation where if words and actual libel were just drops of water, the leaders of the other group would long ago have been drowned by the torrent pouring down on them.

So maybe the Anglo-Jewish press is well off and doesn't know it. For some reason there just does not happen to be any middle ground in Jewish life.

Our Film Folks

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD—That self-impressed genius, Sascha Guitry, we've been told, has a sizeable vein of non-Aryan heritage in his jugular system—his father was blessed with vestigial remnants of the Ten Tribes. But all that was cleverly effaced by a Nazi operation—without anaesthetic—Hitler simply pronounced him 100 per cent Aryan. Guitry CHOSE to remain in Paris and make pictures with the Nazis rather than work under the Vichy banner. He has received special honors from the German Film Chamber. The patronage here being given his film, "Nine Bachelors," is regrettable, even though latter is supposed to be of pre-Nazi vintage.

rubber plants to which was attached a couplet:

"As oaks from acorns still are growing,

This rubber tree may keep you going."

Retorted Ivan Spear, pillar-filler:

"The tree should grow a full-blown tire,

Before Dave Selznick starts 'Jane Eyre'."

Oh, Ivan, that's stretching it a bit!

Town Talk: Harry Cohn, Columbia prexy, has turned his yacht over to the Coast Guard. Meet Hedy LaMarr, composer and lyricist . . . she has written a song, "Believe in Me." Eddie Cantor donates $25 a day toward the milk supply needed at Stage Door Canteen in New York. The Mad Russian will be flickered come summer. Bessie Tomashevsky, widow of the famous Yiddish actor, will have a part in a Damon Runyon picture, "The Big Street." Also in the cast are Julius Tannen and Sam Three-Men-on-a-Horse Levene. Jack Warner proudly announces that 2,525 employees out of 2,600 on his lot have signed up for the Weekly Allotment Plan of buying War Bonds. Milton Berle rents two houses when he goes housekeeping—one for wifey and one for Mama. C. B. DeMille is chief air warden of his neighborhood—yes, Mr. DeMille. The Fuji Theatre, only Jap-owned movie house in L. A.'s Little Tokyo, is closed. Patrons—all gone. A recent escapee from the Orient reports that in addition to films already confiscated, the Japs would like to buy American pictures for Japan . . . and magnanimously proffer Japanese paper in payment.

Due to the curfew law which confines all "enemy" aliens to their homes after 8 p. m., Felix Bresart lost a good part in "Iceland" to Albert Basserman, who came to the U. S. by way of a Swiss citizenship. There are no exceptions to the curfew in spite of that false report that members of the Home Guard would be exempt. One refugee, who doesn't complain about the restrictions imposed on Jewish refugees, wishes only that Uncle Sam would change the color of their identification cards from red to blue so as not to be even in the same color classification as those Nazi Germans whom they loathe.

Where reality is too real for reality: Newsreel footage of the French evacuation of Paris under Nazi bombing was too grim and horrible to be used in the "Pied Piper," so a strictly movie exodus of the people will be used. Irving Pichel will be the narrator of the "Piper." His voice was so effective in "How Green Was My Valley" that he received fan mail. Hence the repeat performance.

AL SEGAL Speaks On

The Goldfish

ONE OF THE professors in our university writes to say that, nevertheless, Jews are a problem. (In a recent column I wondered in what way we are a problem). The professor is kind enough about it. He doesn't mean any disparagement. He says that for convenience the grave matter of the human race is divided into compartments by the social scientists. So we have the Negro problem, the proletarian problem and the Jewish problem.

But, professor, as a self-respecting individual I must protest against being considered a problem, except as my wife considers me one, and that's an old, old aggravation. All these years she has been thinking what to do about me: How to make me stop scattering my pipe ashes over the rugs, by what means she can prevent soup from dripping on my neckties, how to train me to be more useful about the house.

From long suffering I have learned to take all this good-humoredly, as one who knows that a woman would be at a loss if she didn't have a problem in the house to worry about. By remaining a problem I provide my wife with all the entertainment of a cross-word puzzle.

But that is as far as I am willing to go in the matter of being a problem. Certainly, professor, I resent being handled as a problem child in the family of mankind—one of those unfortunate children about whom the neighbors speak in whispers and wonder whether he'll be hanged or electrocuted.

Yes, that's what I, the Jew, have come to. The professors are troubled about me as if I were some startling element of nature. Writers get good fees for pieces about me in the magazines, just as in former times there was good money in writing about sea serpents.

All this has had a deplorable effect on a nature once so placid. I am like a goldfish in a bowl through which many eyes stare to explore my characteristics. Ever once in a while a mischievous child grabs the fish by its tail and lifts it out of the water to see it squirm.

Some of my friends tell me that if I were adequately fortified by the saving power of Jewish life I wouldn't mind this in the least. I would be a goldfish that could smile ironically at the rude eyes around my bowl, at the mischievous boy: "Nu, boy! What does it get you to be doing this to me? I am eternal goldfish and this torture is but the infinitesimal fraction of a moment of my everlasting life."

Yes, it really is a great comfort to a distressed goldfish to feel prophetic and to think that this, too, will pass away and the time will yet come when he will swim in the big broad oceans with the whales and will lie down in peace with the sharks.

Still, I hate being made a problem of mankind, even though I, myself, beset by so many prying eyes, at times wonder what really can be the matter with me. (The harassed problem child may become a problem to himself).

So, I fall into psychopathic moods and brood: Is there something the matter with me, and what is it? . . . Well, this morning when I awoke it was still dark because of war time. It was no joyous awakening, for who may awaken joyously to a new day in these times? A new day is a new chapter of man's travail. The clammy mist took hold of my heart.

I thought, well, this may be something good in the world. This clammy mist envelopes the hearts of all men of good will . . . like some chain holding them together in a common pain. This may be the beginning of brotherhood . . . hearts held together by one pain. I felt kin to all the hearts of all of persecuted mankind in the world.

I had no idea of being a separate person in the world, wasn't thinking of being Jewish. My brother was the Chinese who was trying to hold the line in Burma. He was the Australian at the ramparts of Darwin. He was the Indian who trembles at the thunderous approach of the marching Jap and whose philosophy doesn't know whether to lie unresisting under his feet or to kill him is the better way. My brother was the Jew in all the lands of affliction.

Yes, I was mankind getting up for another tortured day. I wasn't separate. I felt sure of being included in the common denominator of mankind when I got on the bus and started conversation with my old friend and neighbor Haloran. We spoke of our grandchildren.

His Patricia has five teeth, he said. I told him that new words simply are pouring out of my Ellen's mouth day by day. Only yesterday

Chelsea Bans Discrimination in City Workers

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

Chelsea, Mass.—Chelsea municipal employees found guilty of racial discrimination in the future will be disciplined or dismissed from their jobs after a hearing before the proper authorities.

An order to this effect was passed this week by the Chelsea board of aldermen. The resolution of the board, which was passed unanimously, gives notice to all municipal employees of each and every department that "whoever at any time or place shall in any manner, either by word, sign or affiliation do or cause to be done any act, writing, action or expression, tending to arouse racial or religious feeling or tending to the disunion of the citizens of Chelsea, shall after a hearing before the appointed authorities, and after the facts found true, be deemed a person unfit to be in the service of the city."

The action of the board of aldermen was taken after an incident in which a city employee made derogatory remarks about Jews on the streets while he was under the influence of liquor.

It was emphasized by members of the board that Chelsea is a community of more than 32 racial groups who are living in harmony. Like the rest of the country, it was pointed out, Chelsea has no majority or favored group. "This is a community of minorities, where all races, colors and creeds are now shedding blood for a common cause.

she said Jim Roudebush. (Mr. Roudebush is the contractor who has just built a new house for Ellen).

"Yes," Halloran said, "it's more fun to be a grandfather than a father."

"You said it," I replied. "No diapers to change. It's like starting all over again with none of the trouble."

I was kin to Halloran in all things that really matter . . . in this worshipful affection for our grandchildren, in faithful service to our grandchildren, in faithful service to our duties as citizens, though he is a Republican, in solemn purpose to bring up our children right and do our jobs well, in religion, for that matter. Halloran says there's one God and what's the difference in what church he is worshipped? He goes to St. Andrew's.

In the evening I came home in the bus where we were all packed together, like herring in a barrel, all tired of the common load of toil, thinking of our lawns which needed tending because of the way spring had come on with a rush.

Yes, professor, that's me and my neighbors, that's millions of other Jews who in their characters and preoccupations, in homeliness and pulchritude, in stupidity and intelligence, in being greedy and being unselfish, in their anxieties and their hopes are not peculiar in separate compartments. They are jammed together with all other people in the same bus and with all others hope the bus won't go over the cliff in the awful darkness. That's all there is to us.

We are a problem only as a certain dumbbell made a problem of the question: How much are two and two? He was all night trying to solve it and finally said: "I give up. It's a hard problem."

What I mean to say is that Jews are a problem only because we are made a problem by the stupid and the ignorant and, incredibly, the professors accept the dictum of the stupid and the ignorant in this. If ignorance persists that the earth is flat do the geographers say, "What can be the matter with the earth? It should be round. We should do something about the earth."

Rather they would look into the hands of the ignorant to put some light in them.

JEWISH YOUTH MASS AT Y.M.H.A. TO FIGHT ANTI-SEMITES; PEACE REIGNS

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

MONTREAL—An anti-Semitic and anti-conscription demonstration in the Jewish section of this city was prevented when the anti-conscription anti-Jewish students were informed that hundreds of young Jews were massed in front of the Y. M. H. A. headquarters waiting to give them a "warm reception."

Three of the eight anti-Semitic students who participated in the anti-conscription riots last month culminating in anti-Jewish demonstrations and the smashing of windows in Jewish stores, were acquitted as a result of lack of evidence against them. A fourth, who pleaded guilty, was sentenced to pay the court costs. The trial of the remaining four is still to take place.

Where, oh, where is "Captain Koepenich"? One of the best anti-Nazi documents . . . and one of the first to reveal the peculiar workings of the German mind, it seems to have been shelved due to disagreement among the backers. Such productions are badly needed at this moment when much concern is being uttered over the insipid anti-Nazi attitude displayed in recent comedies—"To Be or Not to Be" and "Hitler's Valet."

KOSHER FOOD KITCHENS TO BE SET UP BY SISTERHOODS IN SYNAGOGUES

Special
NEW YORK — Mrs. Samuel Spiegel, National President of the Women's League of the United Synagogue of America reports the establishment of Kosher Kitchens to provide food in time of disaster to those who adhere to the Jewish dietary laws. The idea for the kitchens originated in the Sisterhood of the Beth El Synagogue of New Rochelle, N. Y., and the unit set up in that community is being used as a model. Located in the basement of their synagogue, the kitchen is conducted in cooperation with the local Red Cross organization.

The unit is staffed and equipped by the women of the Beth El Sisterhood who have purchased staple non-perishable foods that are placed in reserve on the so-called emergency food shelves in the synagogue kitchen. The food will be used in the First Aid attempt to feed evacuees of the neighborhood in the event of a war casualty. If mass feeding continues for a period of time the kosher soup kitchen will conform to the Red Cross Westchester recipe regulations but will be executed according to the dietary laws.

Gives Away $2,500 To Push Bond Sale

Special
BALTIMORE, Md.—LeRoy Lipman, member of Baltimore Me-norah Lodge of B'nai B'rith is probably the first man to give away $2,500 of his own money in 25-cent war savings stamps as part of a one-man campaign that is expected to net Uncle Sam $187,500 in war bonds. Last week Ben B'rith Lipman bought 10,000 25-cent war savings stamps which he has distributed free to people with a war savings stamp book. All that he asked in return was a promise that each person who received a stamp would fill up the book and convert the stamps into an $18.75 bond.

Special
LOS ANGELES—The 1941 Jewish Community Honor Roll was distributed to contributors to last year's United Jewish Welfare Fund this week as leaders went into the final phase of preparations for the 1942 drive. Listed in the annual honor roll were all persons, business firms and organizations which had contributed $5 or more to the Welfare Fund. Contributors to the new drive, scheduled to open soon, will be similarly recognized, it was announced.

Church, State In Fight Over Baptizing Jews

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
LONDON—A fierce battle is now developing in Slovakia between the Catholic Church and the Slovakian authorities over the question of whether the church has a right to baptize Jews since this saves them from falling under the anti-Jewish regulations, especially from deportation to Nazi-occupied Eastern territory.

The "Catholic," organ of the Catholic church in Slovakia, reaching here this week carries a violent protest against the continuous public attacks which Sano Mach, the Slovakian pro-Nazi Minister of Interior has been making against Catholic priests, accusing them of undermining the anti-Jewish measures of the Slovak government by large scale baptisms of Jews. The organ of the Catholic church denies that mass preparations of Jews for baptism are being carried on by the church.

At the same time the "Catholic" severely criticizes the Slovak government for the new measures taken against baptism of Jews in the country. "The Catholic church does not exclude anybody who wishes to become a Catholic," the paper writes.

Bill Exposing Bias Ads Passed by N. Y. Assembly

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
ALBANY—The Assembly this week passed the Dollinger Bill, which would force employment agencies to insert in their advertisements the name and address of a company wanting an employee of a specific race, color or religion.

The Gutman bill, which is now in the Senate Judiciary Committee, requires that before an employment agency places an ad requesting help of a definite religion or race, it must have a statement in writing from the prospective employer, and this statement must be open for inspection by License Commissioner Moss.

Elected officers at the last meeting of the H. I. C. Club were: President, Flo Izsak; secretary, Ann Nisenbaum; treasurer, Tillie Scheff, and publicity agent, Rose Bernath.

THERE AND HERE

Note to Hirohito: The Pathans, who are the Afghans of India and one of that country's most warlike tribes, may be Moslems in their creed, but they claim descent from one Afghan, whose father was Jeremiah, son of Malik Saul, the commander-in-chief of the Hebrews under King Solomon. . . . Washington rumors that the Dies Committee will be dissolved ere long—which won't make us at all mad. We need a good Congressional investigating body to do the work Mr. Dies was supposed to do, but we surely don't need the job done in the way Mr. Dies has been doing it. . . . Bookshops report that there has been a sudden rise in the demand for Henri Torres' biography of Pierre Laval, which was published last year and which gives the lowdown on the lowdown collaborationist leader of Vichy, France. . . . Expected in this country before you read this is Sidney Bernstein of the British Ministry of Information, who will remain here for some time on a coordination job.

WAR ECHOES

Nazi Germany must have been surprised the other night when an American orchestra conducted by a Polish-born Jew short-waved a Wagner concert across the Atlantic. The conductor was Arthur Rodzinski, and he took the curse off the composer whom the Nazis are boasting as their very own by playing a little number Wagner had composed in his youth, dedicated to the British nation, and entitled "Rule Britannia Overture". . . . Credit the promotion department of Columbia Pictures with a novel stunt. Their new anti-Nazi film, "The Wife Takes a Flier," will be advertised by a trailer showing Adolf, Benito and Hirohito talking about the picture. . . . The new show Billy (Showman) Rose is preparing for his sparkling nightspot, the Diamond Horseshoe, includes a song called "Some of My Best Friends are Americans," to be sung by a trio representing the Hit'n'Muss Hiro-ic combine.

THIS AND THAT

A most powerful creator of inter-religious good will is a film that is now making the rounds of America's churches. It's the screen production of Maxwell Anderson's "Journey to Jerusalem," starring Sid Lumet. . . . Ohio State University will have a music scholarship to be known as the Walter Damrosch Scholarship, which will help gifted young musicians follow in the footsteps of that great master. . . . Yes, that Louise Waterman Wise who is represented with two paintings of the crucifixion of Jesus at the Puma Gallery's exhibit of "Modern Christs" is none other than the wife of Dr. Stephen S. Wise.

ABOUT PEOPLE

That nattily uniformed naval commander whom you see at Jewish meetings about town is none other than Rabbi Joshua L. Goldberg, formerly of Astoria, Long Island, and now a chaplain in the Navy. In the first world war he served as an interpreter with the American Army, but now he confesses that at the time he knew practically no English. . . . Sid Luckman, who was Columbia's big football star some seasons ago, now is assistant coach at Holy Cross College. . . . Elmer Rice, who has a son who is a full-fledged dramatic critic, expects to become a father again before the year is out. . . . Furrier I. J. Fox, whose son already is in the Army, will have a soldier son-in-law soon. The fortunate young man is Sgt. George Horowitz, who is marrying Juliet Fox. . . . Walter Winchell's Girl Friday wants the world to know that the largest contribution made to New York's Catholic Charities by any individual was the sum given by her boss.

WEEKLY GIGGLE

All of Europe today is a factory of jokes of an anti-Nazi nature, reports Curt Riess in "Underground Europe," a book that belongs on your must list. . . . As an example he cities the following story, concerning a Norwegian fisherman who rowed out to a fjord to save two drowning pilots after an airplane crash. A crowd of onlookers ashore watched as he hauled them into his boat, exchanged a few words with them, and then threw them overboard. On his return somebody asked him why he had done that. "I thought they were British airmen, but they were Germans," he replied. "But they were alive. How could you leave living men to drown in the sea?" "Well, conceded the fisherman, "one of them did say they were alive—but you know how those Nazis lie". . . . Then there's the one which Leonard Lyons says he got via the grapevine from Holland, about the group of faithful Netherlanders who began to greet one another in the streets by raising their hands and shouting "Heil Rembrandt!" The greeting soon was being shouted at meetings and in the market places and wherever the people of Amsterdam would assemble. . . . The Gestapo, puzzled by the prevalence of the "Heil Rembrandt" salute, finally collared a Dutchman and ask him how come. "It's very simple, the Hollander told them, "we're simply following the German example. We hail our best painter the way you do yours". . . . And from France, where "le val" means "the valley," we get the following lesson in French grammar. . . . "What's the difference between 'le val' and 'Laval', a teacher asked his class. . . . "Le val," replied the bright pupil, "simply means a low place—but 'Laval' means the lowest depths imaginable."

M'Mahan To Speak At B'nai B'rith Patriotic Rally

B'nai B'rith Lodge No. 58 will sponsor a mass rally to be known as "I Am An American" meeting on Sunday, May 17, which President Roosevelt has designated as "I Am An American Day."

Father Francis MacMahan of Notre Dame will be principal speaker at the rally. He will be remembered as the nationally prominent Catholic leader who has been a constant critic of the subversive activities of Father Coughlin.

The meeting is to be held in the large auditorium of Kirshbaum Center.

Local Pastor Joins Group In Struma Protest

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—Moved by the recent sinking of the S. S. "Struma," as a result of which 768 refugees fleeing from pogroms in Rumania and barred from Palestine perished in the Black Sea, thirty-one American clergymen sent a cable recently to the Archbishop of Canterbury appealing for his intercession with the British Government so that other "homeless Jews be accorded refuge in the land of their fathers," it was announced here by the American Emergency Committee for Zionist Affairs.

Among the signatures attached to the cable are those of Dr. Henry Atkinson, director of the Church Peace Union; Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of Riverside Church, New York; Bishop A. W. VITAL VITAMINS

THE HEALTH, strength and energy of your family were never more important. Be sure you are providing the right food and preparing it properly. Electric cooking does its part by retaining more of the vital vitamins and minerals in food, and proper use of this modern cooking method will help you protect health, prevent food waste, conserve time and electrical and physical energy.

Follow These Important Rules for Conservation and Health Cooking...

1 Conserve by using oven or economy cooker to prepare entire meals that cost less and require less Electricity.

2 Use Little Water—hold to a minimum the dissolving and loss of water-soluble vitamins.

3 Start Fast, Cook Quickly—reduce the time vitamins and minerals are exposed to heat, liquid and air.

4 Avoid Violent Boiling—accurate heat control prevents "boiling-out" vital vitamins and minerals.

5 Keep Covered—Don't Stir—Air destroys certain vitamins. The even distribution and accurate control of Electric heat makes stirring unnecessary to prevent sticking and scorching.
